d-703d-9

Abstract

A method and system for prefetching of data, such as, image data of medical images, for example, digital radiographic images, into a cache. The prefetching relies on workflow information. The method and system is particularly advantageous for use in screening programs where a large number of individuals are screened for a disease, such as cancer, in particular, breast cancer.

10097623 .052304